

AGR-certified sitting comfort now also available for the new Golf Variant

The new Golf Variant was presented to the world for the first time at the Geneva Motor Show. It weighs up to 105 kg less than its predecessor. The new Golf Variant is a sporty, elegant all-rounder that combines low consumption with a dynamic performance and offers a high degree of variability.

It is worth giving a special mention to sitting comfort. In future, the latest model will also be available with the ergoActive seat certified with the AGR seal of approval.

The seat offers ergonomic driving comfort with 14 different adjustments for the driver in the settings for the seat surface, backrest and head rests. The integrated massage function offers additional comfort by releasing tension in the back muscles, neck and shoulders. Volkswagen is this making a clear statement: ergonomic design in the vehicle is important for health, not just in the high-end range.
